

Builders are set to commence destroying the burrows of one of the most intensely populated platypus habitats of Australia to build a Woolworths supermarket. Over 50 platypus burrows exist on the site. All have been photographed and their location fixed by satellite tracking. The burrows extend well into the site.

Our beautiful town of Maleny Queensland, population 4000, has a rural character that attracts many tourists and people seeking a quality rural lifestyle. The Woolworths site is on the main street and on the river, close to the local primary school and on a very congested road. The community is outraged but government will not act.

Please can you help us by doing any of the following:

- ❑ Tell people about this situation
- ❑ Ask a child if they would rather go down the main street to visit the supermarket or the platypus
- ❑ Buy one thing that is local on our behalf
- ❑ Email any of the following and let them know how you feel about big businesses that do not respect people or environment.

The owner/builder, Mr Greg Quinn
hutchinsonbuilders@hutchinsonbuilders.com.au

The CEO of Woolworths Australia, Mr Roger Corbett
rcorbett@woolworths.com.au

Our Prime Minister
<http://www.pm.gov.au/>

Our spokesperson is Mr Jon Woodlands. Jon can be contacted on: (+61)

Please let us know that your thoughts are with us:
<http://www.malenyvoice.com>